"SPIRITUAL EDUCATION."

RABBI CALISH DELIVERS AN INTERESTING DISCOURSE.

He Tells What Can be Accomplished by Spiritual Education, Which is the Result of Patient Growth.

Abraham E. N. Calish spoke at Beth Ahava synagogue yesterday morning on "Spiritual Education," taking his text from Proverbs iv, 22.

He began by describing the development of a rose from the bud. The wonderful beauty and fragrance of the full-blown flower were all packed away within the bud. Slowly with each passing day the watchful sepias, who with their own bodies had defended the parts within, relax their vigilance. The petals, blossoming at their own bidding, grow bolder with each hour, till finally, turning from the central heartstone of their life, reveal to the passing world the exquisite loveliness of their peerless color.

The growth of a human soul is an enigma of a flower. The possibilities of glorious manhood or beautiful womanhood lie hidden in the child as the petals and perfume of the rose are concealed in the bud. When an unconscious babe rests in the blissful ignorance of infancy who can say what powers or promises, what potencies or possibilities may not be bound in that tiny form?

It is a simple yet suggestive poem that begins:

"How much does the baby weigh
Not in all? Who can say?
Not his dainty flesh and bone,
Not his sweet, pink clay alone,
Not his limbs, so soft and fair;
These are trifles light as air,
These are but a thing apart,
Which we weigh him in the heart."

That is the solution of the problem, the heart. The old sage well said, "Guard above all things thy heart; for out of it are the issues of life" (Prov. iv, 23). The training of the heart is the paramount duty of life. For this is necessary spiritual education.

WHAT SPIRITUAL EDUCATION DOES

Spiritual education is that which makes us more loving rather than more learned, more virtuous rather than more logical, well-behaved rather than well-read, humble instead of pedantic, spiritual rather than intellectual. To be "spiritual-minded" is to have an ever-present sense of God's nearness, an ever-grateful recognition of Him in every hour and condition of life.

The Rabbi then contrasted two men--physicians--both skillful and learned, both standing in the front rank of their profession, both commanding large and lucrative practices. The one is self-satisfied and vain. He regards his success as the fruit of his own powers, the cunning of his brain, the skill of his hand, the art that he has made his own. He is proud of his position, but the pride is in himself that he hath done this, and all the glory and reward he considers as due to him and his efforts.

The other is happy in his success, as he has a right to be. But his happiness is not that he hath done it, but that he hath been permitted to do it. He has an ever-present recognition that his art and his skill are his gift, not his merit; his blessing, not his creation. He is grateful that to him was granted the power to heal and save.

You need not ask which is the spiritually-minded man. These are types, it is true, but you see the same characteristics in one form or another, and to a greater or less degree in every avenue of life. The spiritual education is that which trains us to recognize God, to feel that our gifts are but trusteeships, and we are stewards unto the Great Giver for what we have and hold. If our powers or capacities be more than ordinary, our obligation is all the deeper. The law holds the fiduciary to strictest account. We are all fiduciaries in life, holding in trust the endowments of our nature, our capacities, be they in whatever direction they will--of music, or art, or oratory, or money-getting, or poetry or drama. It is our task in life to use our gifts for the best purposes, to secure the happiness of others no less than ourselves.

BARON DE HIRSCH.

The speaker illustrated this point with the name of Baron de Hirsch, who died last week. This man was the greatest giver of the century. It is estimated that during the last ten years he has given away no less than $50,000,000. But his gifts have not impoverished those who received, as, alas! too often is the case. Other men give freely, but the effort is often no greater than the mere signing of the check or the dictating of the conditions under which the gift may be considered valid. But Baron de Hirsch considered his capacity no less than his fruits as belonging to God. He bent the same splendid energies to the giving as he did to the getting. With him giving was a duty, because he had the power--a duty which was to be done earnestly, conscientiously, and personally.

His regular education may not or may have been broad or profound, but in the spiritual school-room he was an apt scholar--may, more, a teacher--inspiring, with his own life the beautiful Jewish concept of charity as duty.

THE STRUGGLE OF AGES.

The speaker then went on to say that the spiritual education of the human race was the result of slow and patient growth. The great truths humanity now calls its own are the fruits of the struggle of ages. It has been a long and painful process, but the fruitage is all the more precious. "The sweetest music is not in the orchestra, but in the human voice, when it speaks from its instant life tones of tenderness, truth, and courage." To give that life of tenderness, truth, and courage is the aim of spiritual education.

The speaker concluded by saying that this education is given more by practice than by precept. As man was religious before he was scientific, the child feels before he knows it imbibes an atmosphere more easily than it performs a set task, because it does the former unconsciously. The child must always be given a spiritual impression, which means that those who are around it must be spiritually-minded. Thus the double duty, for ourselves and for our children, is laid upon us.

THE MAY MUSIC FESTIVAL.

The Coming Musical Event of the Season. Artists Engaged.

The members of the Wednesday Club and the special committees appointed to arrange for the coming May festival will be given in the Academy of Music, Thursday and Friday, May 14th and 15th, are vigorously at work. The honorary membership list has now reached within one or two of the one hundred point and subscribing members have been enrolled all during the past week.

Subscribing members are those who subscribe in advance for one or more seats to one or both of the concerts. A special advantage of being a subscribing member is that the gift may be given (May 12th) will be devoted solely to the subscribing members at the box-office, and on that day only subscribing members can reserve seats free of extra cost.

The box-office sale will not commence for the general public until Wednesday, May 15th. The programme is nearly complete and embraces features which will surpass any given at previous festivals of the club. The chorus of the club will be over two hundred strong, and the chief work to be produced is Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," a famous and beautiful work which was first given for the Gutenberg Festival, at Leipzig.

In 1890. Together with this will be excerpts from the "Messiah."

"Let Us Break Their Bonds Asunder," "The Lord Gave the Word," "Hallelujah," etc.

Interpreted in the programme will be part-songs:

"Oh, My Love's Like a Red, Red Rose," (Garrett).

"The Sands of Dee," (McFarren.)

"Who is Sylvia," (German.)

"Waltzmauer--March and Chorus," (Wagner.)

Together with solo selections as have made famous the solo artists engaged.

Three famous soloists have thus far been contracted with. Miss Lillian Blauvelt, of New York, soprano; Mr. Mackenzie Chase, of New York, tenor; Mr. H. L. Chase, of Boston, baritone; and the Baltimore Oratorio Orchestra, under the leadership of Herr Fritz Gaul, has also been engaged. The addition of the orchestra will strengthen the programme and make the coming May festival a finished production.

It is expected that the musical public of Richmond will fully appreciate the splendid treat in store for them and that both concerts may be attended by an audience which will tax the capacity of the Academy of Music.
